

Itty Bitty

by Damien Drago

Verse 1

Let me tell you a story 'bout an itty bitty piece of paper
How this itty bitty paper would change the world
Let's get on back to the summer of 1776
To the Philadelphia city of Brotherly Love
The Continental Congress came together
To say how Old King George had done us wrong
So they decided it was time to declare our independence
And they asked a man named Jefferson to write it down
And the words he wrote will shine forever...

Chorus

We hold these truths to be self-evident,
That all men are created equal,
That they are endowed by their Creator
With certain unalienable rights,
That among these are...
Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness.

Verse 2

So the Congress they approved the Declaration
It was cool and sunny morning on the Fourth of July
On the fifth they started sending out tons of copies
So everyone in the whole world would recognize America is no longer ruled by Britain
We'll now be known to all as the land of the free
This why that itty bitty piece of paper
Will be known throughout all of history
The words in it will shine forever...
